US HDPE prices increase this week

The US evaluated increased export pricing for BM and HDPE films this week. Prices increased as a result of lower material supply. Prices for HDPE injection moulding were evaluated at $910–$940/mt FAS Houston levels, staying constant week over week.

Both HD film and HDPE BM export prices were up $ (+10/mt) over the previous week, with HD film export prices evaluated at the $1030–1060/mt FAS Houston levels and HDPE BM export prices evaluated at the $1010–1040/mt FAS Houston levels.

HDPE prices increase in SEA and FEA this week

HDPE prices were up this week in Southeast and Far East Asia. Purchasing attitudes were constant to robust in Southeast Asia. Local producers increased their pricing as a result of limited import offers from Middle Eastern sources. Due to the Lunar New Year vacation, the Vietnamese market was quiet, while Indonesia's market was closed because of national elections. Spot discussions stalled as converters resisted larger bids, citing a lacklustre market for completed items from end users.

HDPE yarn prices were evaluated at the $ 930-950/mt CFR levels in Far East Asia, while HDPE injection prices were evaluated at the $ 880-910/mt CFR levels. Both prices were up $ 10/mt over the previous week. Prices for HDPE blow moulding were evaluated at $900–930/mt CFR levels, while prices for HDPE film were constant week over week at $950–980/mt CFR levels.

While HDPE yarn prices in Southeast Asia were evaluated at the $ 970–1000/mt CFR levels, HDPE film prices were evaluated at the $990–1020/mt CFR levels, both week on week up $ (+10/mt). Prices for HDPE BM were evaluated at the $950-980/mt CFR levels, up $ (+10/mt) from the previous week, while prices for HDPE injection were evaluated at the $ 960-990/mt CFR levels, up $ (+20) from the week before.

R-HDPE prices remain stable in Middle East this week

The pricing of recycled HDPE in the Middle East remained constant this week. The market for recycled polymers is holding steady despite consumers continuing to purchase mostly for necessities. Ahead of their peak seasonal demand, manufacturers have been aggressively seeking out low-cost items for the previous several days.

Small-scale manufacturers are finding it difficult to function in the present market conditions, even as large manufacturers can generate sales by accepting a cut on their profits. Players keep up need-based procurement at every stage in the interim, which supports their consistent sales.
