India Strengthens Energy Security Amid Global Oil Volatility with Strategic Reserves and Diverse Imports: Oil Minister Hardeep Singh Puri

India has secured ample energy reserves to withstand the recent global crude price surge triggered by the Israel-Iran tensions. According to Oil Minister Hardeep Singh Puri, the country's balanced approach—focused on availability, affordability, and sustainability—ensures stability despite external shocks.

By diversifying its crude and gas imports, India has reduced reliance on any single region. Russia now leads as the primary crude supplier with competitive pricing, while Qatar remains the largest LNG exporter. This strategic diversification reinforces India's resilience against ongoing global energy uncertainties
